Electoral dysfunction

There is a cure.

Let's put an end to electoral dysfunction!

Millions of Canadians suffer from electoral dysfunction, a serious condition when untreated.

You probably know the symptoms. You cast your vote in every election. But frequently you fail. Your vote elects no one to represent your views in Parliament. To make matters worse, one party can win 40% of the votes, but gain 60% of the seats and 100% of the power. Parliament is not representative or accountable to the entire electorate.

No wonder Canadians feel ill during elections.

But there is a cure already used in more than 80 other democracies. A good dose of proportional representation – a fair voting system – is all it takes. A system that makes every vote count, every voter equal and election results fair.

If you or someone you love has experienced the symptoms of electoral dysfunction, don't delay. Learn about the cure and take action today!
